I started with this informant to analyze the present day economic set-up. But since the plan was bad, we soon quit.

The main sources of income are (1) treaty money, (2) leased land, (3) sale of wood and pickets (4) crops.

1. Amounts to $5 per head.
2. 10 lbs. of bacon, a sack of flour and tobacco for the family.
3. This appears to be the main source for a load of wood can always be exchanged for food.
4. Has only oats and little of that.

Almost no income from trapping and hunting.

I now live near the lake. The place I now have I bought from Wm. Beam, an Indian, in 1929, for 1 horse, 1 cow, and one-half share of crop. Although we do not get the title for the land, we pay in this manner for whatever improvements have been put on it. I had a farm up the hill near Pooyak's place which I sold to him for one cow. Then I lived in the house where John Fine Day now lives. When I took the farm near the lake I sold the house to John Fine Day for one horse.

The only hunting we do is running coyotes into deep snow on horse.
