Congratulations to Sean Tucker who was recognized by the Saskatchewan Federation of Labour with the Bob Sass Occupational Health & Safety Award for his work in the area of occupational health and safety.

Business Building Update

The Faculty has been working over the past year with Stantec and KPMG to produce reports which assess the need and possibilities for a new building for the Faculty. The Dean's New Building Advisory group has been part of this process all along the way.

We have received those two completed reports which can be found in the "For Faculty & Staff" section of the website. These reports are just the beginning and undoubtedly we will have to pivot and adjust as opportunities for funding emerge. Last week Minister Goodale made mention of the new building as part of his campaign launch - see here for that link

Generic Faculty Administrator

Email

The Faculty has created a generic email address for the Faculty Administrator:

Business.Administrator@uregina.ca

If you type 'Business Faculty Administrator' into the 'to' line on GroupWise, you should get the correct address.

Presentations by Chief Edmund Bellegard

You are invited to attend the presentations by Edmund Bellegard, Tribal Chief of File Hills Qu'Appelle Tribal Council:

Date: Thursday, July 11
Time: 9:00 to 10:00 a.m.
Location: Education Building, Room 560
Topic: Duty to Consult and Accommodate, Impact Benefit Agreements and Partnerships

And a second:

Date: Friday, July 12, 2019
Time: 9:00 to 10:00 a.m.
Location: Education Building, Room 560
Topic: Indigenous Governance and Treaty Implementation

About Edmund Bellegard:

Tribal Chief Bellegarde has served the File Hills Qu'Appelle Tribal Council as the Tribal Chief & Chairman since September 2006. In this leadership role he also serves as Chairperson of numerous boards at all levels in the community, region and international. Mr. Bellegarde is an accomplished business executive and community leader with experience in the retail banking and casino gaming industries to compliment his role in overseeing the wide scope of Tribal Council programs and service delivery. In his role as leader of the Tribal Council he is focused on First Nations capacity development through transformational governance, youth, economic and social development, education, health, language and culture. Edmund is passionate about strengthening public policy frameworks through an Indigenous lens and believes in the intrinsic value of First Nations Peoples.

These presentations are part of the Executive MBA course Business, Government, and Society. The course focuses on the complex ecosystem within which firms operate, including stakeholder relationships and the societal, political and legal arrangements and expectations that condition firm behavior. It has a particular focus upon the relationship between government, industry and Indigenous peoples.

Conference Presentations

Gord Pennycook presented the following:

- Pennycook, G. & Rand. D.G. presented "Exceptional overconfidence: Implications for conspiracy belief and bullshit receptivity" at the Canadian Society for Brain, Behaviour and Cognitive Science Annual Conference in Waterloo, ON.
- Pennycook, G. & Rand. D.G. presented "Political ideology, cognitive reflection, fake news, and the mainstream media. Are people good at detecting bullshit?" at the Society for Personality and Social Psychology Annual Meeting in Portland, OR.

Summer issues of this newsletter will feature a list of conference presentations.

If you have given a conference presentation since January, please send the citation details to Kelly-Ann McLeod so that we can highlight your research in the newsletter.
