RELEASE ON RECEIPT

REGINA, DEC. 12 - Minoru Yamasaki, master planner for Wascana Centre, has been appointed architect for the library building at the University of Saskatchewan, Regina Campus, Principal W.A. Riddell announced today. A Regina firm, Izumi, Arnott and Sugiyama, has been named associate architect.

The library building will be the main architectural feature of the new campus, and along with a residence unit and facilities for physical education, will comprise the second University project planned for the new site. J. Pettick, Regina, was appointed architect for the physical education centre last September. An architect has not yet been named for the residence unit.

Planned as part of the academic section of the campus, the Library Building will be large enough to provide space for 200,000 books and 700 readers. A provincial government document centre is expected to be incorporated in the library or associated with it. It is hoped that the library building will be in use in 1966.

Mr. Yamasaki, whose headquarters are in Birmingham, Michigan, is also architect for the first Regina Campus project, which is under construction and scheduled for completion in 1964-65. His associate is Izumi, Arnott and Sugiyama.
